

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for secure distribution of digital healthcare data using an offsite internet file server.

The inventive device includes a healthcare device which generates a set of digital medical data files which are securely transmitted over the internet to an offsite internet file server which provides the ability to upload and download the files from a requesting web client using open standard internet protocols.